CRANIOTOMY

Craniotomy is the surgical procedure to remove and later replace a section of bone from the skull for purpose of removing a tumor, a blood clot, or a vascular malformation or aneurysm. In a craniotomy, an incision is made in the scalp to expose the portion of the skull that lies over the abnormality to be removed. A section of the skull, called a bone flap, is removed and the dura (a thick membrane) will be separated to expose the underlying brain. The lesion is removed as much as possible, then the dura is closed, the bone flap replaced, and the scalp incision closed.
